Zeal For The Faith

"I feel as if I were called to be a fighter, a priest, an apostle, a doctor, a martyr; as if I could never satisfy the needs of my nature without performing, for Your sake, every kind of heroic action at once. I feel as if I'd got the courage to be a

Crusader,

a Pontifical Zouave,

dying on the battlefield

in defence of the Church. And at the same time I want to be a priest; how lovingly I'd carry You in my hands

when you came down

from heaven at my call;

how lovingly I'd bestow

You on men's souls! And yet, with all this desire to be a priest, I've nothing but admiration and envy for the humility of St.

Francis; I'd willingly imitate him in refusing the honour of the priesthood."

St Thérèse of Lisieux:

The Story of a Soul...

Have YOU booked a ticket for our Conference yet? If not...

Who among us can claim to have even a shred of zeal to compare with that of the great St Thérèse? Happily, as soon as our first advertisement for the June Conference [see opposite] hit the doormats, the ticket orders rolled in from various parts of Scotland, from England and Ireland. That's the good news. Here's more: the hall will be comfortably set out cabaret style, because we've found that audiences prefer to be seated round a table, rather than in rows so, the hall will be comfortable and the seating arrangement means that nobody needs to feel isolated. It's also easier to enjoy your tea and biscuits!

Here's the not so good news: while the hall will be comfortable, with a healthy audience comprising both members of the clergy and laity, it won't be bursting at the seams. We would like to have to ask for the larger hall. Call us show-offs if you like. So, if you have not yet booked, consider the following reasons why you should: (1) No other group in Scotland is organising meetings for orthodox Catholics on this scale - modernists have meetings all the time and have no problem filling a hall to attack the Church. (2) As well as learning something new, you can give and receive moral support and enjoy being among like-minded Catholics (3) You can help us send a signal to the Bishops that we're not a small bunch of extremists, that there are lots of Catholics who are concerned about the state of the Church in the UK. So book now. Remember, there will be no admission on the day without a pre-booked ticket - a bargain at double the price!

St Vincent de Paul: "If love of God is the fire, zeal is its flame." Be zealous... Be there!
